STOCK MARKET IS DULL

Nothing Occurs to Stimulate Interest in Dealings.

ADVANCE IN PACIFIC MAIL

Bank Statement Shows Plainly the Influence of the Declining Money Rate in Prompting Trust Companies To Contract Loans.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The day's events brought nothing to stimulate interest in the stock market, which was in a somnolent state. The desire on the part of many brokers to extend the Thanksgiving holiday over the end of the week was called responsible in part for the intense dullness. A small fraction marked the extreme vibration for some of the most active stocks. While the market presented this discouraged aspect from the standpoint of traders, the Bank of England's larger financial interests seemed content to see the speculation follow. The growing strength of the banking position is relied on to provide resources for coming bond flotation.

An advance in price of Pacific Mail was due to reports of a ship subsidy to be embodied in the forthcoming message of the president to congress. The bank statement showed plainly the influence of the declining money rate in prompting the trust companies to contract loans, as shown in the average loan decrease of $13,000,000 by the other banks. The transfer of deposits from the trust companies to the clearing house banks was accompanied by a loan expansion of $17,363,400 by the latter institutions, as shown by the actual statement. The actual cash gain was about as estimated, the result being a further reduction of the excess of loans over deposits.

Bonds were steady. Total sales, par value, $770,000. United States is registered have advanced 1/4 per cent. in the bid price on call since last week. Total sales today, $641,600 shares, including: Chesapeake & Ohio, 2,400; Norfolk & Western, 1,000; Southern, 200; Southern preferred, 100; Tennessee Copper, 1,000; Virginia-Carolina Chemical, 300.

Chicago Grain Market.

CHICAGO, ILL., Nov. 26.—Wheat sank in almost a straight line today and closed at the lowest point of the season, 14 1/2¢ under last night. The chief reasons were the world's shipments, rates, in Argentina and official forecast of a break in the long run of dry weather southwest of here. Latest figures for corn showed a net loss of 1/4¢ to 1/2¢, and for oats, 1/4¢. In provisions the finish varied from 1/2¢ decline to 7/8¢ advance.

Hudson River.

Since the first settlements in North America the Hudson river has had in the neighborhood of 20 names, and even in New York today the stream is sometimes called "North River." Verazzano, who is credited with sailing up the Hudson fully 100 years before Henry Hudson made his discoveries called the river "the stream of sweet hills." A year later a brother of the early explorer made a trip up the Hudson and named it the "San Germano." This occurred in 1525. A Spaniard named the Hudson the "San Antonio," and eighty years later Henry Hudson named the river the "Manhattan," from the name of the Indians who lived at its mouth. The river was again named "De Riviere van der Vorst Mauritius" in honor of Prince Maurice of Orange. Other names are the "Groote Riviere," the "Noordt River," the "River of the Maushattans" and the "Rio de Montague."

WHERE SURGERY FAILS

Cutting Won't Remove the Cause of Piles.

Piles mean more than merely the pain of the stubborn little tumors. There is a condition inside that must be dealt with. Cutting is usually followed with later and worse attacks. A permanent cure can only be made by bettering the condition of the parts and getting a free circulation of the blood.

Home-Remedy cures all kinds of piles by internal action right on the cause. Sold by A. E. G. Klor, Newport News, Va., and money back if it fails. $1 per bottle. Geo. Leubardt, Station B, Buffalo, N. Y.

SARGASSO SEA MISSING.

Norwegian Expedition Fails to Find It at Home.

Now and then one of the old stand ard properties, so a theatrical person might call them, of the universe crumples up and has to be kicked off to one side. Last, it was Halley's comet; now it is the Sargasso Sea. An inquiring expedition of Norwegians, sent out by their government's bureau of fisheries, have been prying into the nooks and corners of the ocean where the Sargasso Sea ought to be. They have recently returned and reported that they did not find the Sargasso Sea at home.

There are some things that well-brought-up little boys when they get on in life retain their belief in even more than they do in what they learned in Sunday school. Here and there a point in history, grammar, or, as in this case, geography. To hear that the Sargasso is no more will be a real shock to thousands of the well-brought-up little boys of a few years ago. They were firmly convinced, up to the very last, that it was a place where the rank weeds floated in long accumulated masses, almost as thick as the hay in the old mow; here and there might be seen a derelict hulk, for into this slough of the ocean all things drifted; and if a whale were rash enough to eat its way for into the mass, that rash whale would very likely perish, unable to make his way out again through the floes.

The Norwegians did find floating seaweed, although they missed the congress of derelicts and the fettered whales. The weed was a trifle more plenty, perhaps, than in ocean localities where the current is brisker. But a cruise through a whole gridiron of latitudes and longitudes failed to disclose anything worth going down there for, in the way of the picturesque. In the end the investigators concluded that the weed usually sank a few months after ending its term of life, and so kept the surface fairly clear of litter.

The faithful, who refuse to give up their beliefs, will have to transfer their Sargasso to the floor of the ocean. It is doubtful just what becomes of the seaweed that sinks, and perhaps it may form fancy gardens at great depths. Deep-sea sounding should solve the point sooner or later. But it is time rather that the men of science gave us a new wonder, in return for those that have, like the Sargasso, recently been taken away.—New York Evening Sun.

DEVELOPMENT IN ALASKA.

Increasing Number of Stamp Mills Have Been Put in Operation.

One of the most significant of the year's developments in Alaska has been the increasing number of small stamp mills which have been put in operation testing out the numerous veins of free-milling quartz which have been uncovered in the course of the last year or two. For example, recent arrivals at Fairbanks from Chandra report that the little three-stamp mill taken into the district over the snow last winter has been running steadily. Another new mill has been set up, and is at work on ore which had been accumulated on the dump. Everybody in the district is enthusiastic over the prospects in the hard rock way, assuring the permanence of the camp for all time to come. It is believed that by another year several more mills will be running.

On the coast, as the readers of the Post-Intelligencer will recall, some phenomenal clean-ups have been made by the small mills which have done their first work in the present season. On it, season's work more than one mine has paid back the owners every dollar originally invested in developing the property and putting in the mill. What is taken out hereafter will be all "net."

It is with the development of the quartz property that the greater prosperity will come to Alaska and the greater wealth will be uncovered in that country. Everywhere prospectors are looking for free-milling properties, and the number that have been discovered is surprisingly large, considering the difficulties encountered in that country in finding or tracing a ledge on the surface.

When the railroads are constructed into the interior, so that it will be possible to get in mining machinery without an extravagant outlay, there will be quartz mills by the hundred all over interior Alaska. With the permanent population to develop the country in a broad and definite direction.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Some Queer Toys

In the graves of ancient Peru have been discovered spinning tops almost identical in shape with the ones used at this modern age. In China was made discovery of a top almost exactly like the one found in Peru, and scientists are at a loss to understand how these little articles could have been so much alike, and yet be found in countries so far apart.

It has been estimated that the toys are at least 3,000 years of age. Old Egyptian toys have been found which show that they were arranged on wheels, much as the toys of today are. Toys, very much alike in all particulars, have been discovered in all parts of the globe, and their age dates back into the thousands of years.

Latest Hand Bags

Some of the latest and handsomest handbags are being fashioned from a heavy Persian material which reminds one of the old fashioned Paisley hawes. The mountings are in dull French gray or oxidized silver, with cord handles. These bags will be much in vogue this winter, according to the fashion makers, and they will be a bright spot lightening up the dark toilet. Many of the new afternoon gowns are fitted with haws to match the material. They are made to hang from the belt or arm, just as the owner pleases.
